Max3300 with KIO Ribbon Example:

Value	Description
None	Prints Monochrome image buffer and Ejects card.
10	Prints card and returns the card to the print ready position.
20	For Ribbons with Monochrome (1 panel) and clear veneer (1 panel) with printer firmware versions 2.00 and above - Prints card and returns the card to the print ready position. Also, if appropriate, synchronizes multiple-panel ribbon for the next print pass. For P600s using YMCKOK ribbon, the card ejects after the last application of either Ky or laminate, and a prior +DLAMIL command determines whether or not the 120 command invokes lamination. For Maxx300s using KyO ribbon, informs printer to synchronize to print Overlay panels.
30	Print Card but leave in place (Allows preparation for Module 2 with Module 2 BUSH in P600s.)

Print Options

Syntax $\{ \{ p_i \} \}^c$

Ribbon panels advance during printing, making the installed ribbon the overriding factor in choosing buffers for imaging.

in the buffer designated for Resin images. After print completion, the card may be ejected to the output tray (hopper) or repositioned to print another image (ribbon panel). Typically the clear varnish, or for some models, the hologram lamination prints next. Then, a duplex printer may produce additional printing after flipping the card to the opposite side.

This command serves to print a monochrome graphic panel from a card image previously stored in the buffer designated for Resin images.
