portraits in Union Hall

" Sir Gaspar the Hasty:

Killed in the line of duty. During the quest for the Dragon of Cabbage Patch, he was the first to track the infamous beast to its lair. He had snuck up behind the monster and lifted its tail to strike the killing blow, when without warning the dragon broke wind and incinerated the brave knight on the spot."

" Sir Theobald the Fat:

laboured long and well in the king's service, until he retired to become an instructor at the Knight's Academy. There he was killed by a student while standing next to a dummy during jousting practice."

" Sir Cedric the Patient:

Died when he sought shelter from a summer shower in Dahlen Castle. His armour rusted while he was standing in the front hall, and no one realized the suit was occupied until a passing tourist peeked inside the following spring.

" Sir Gareth the Blond:

A pioneer of water safety, he was the first to advocate removing one's armour prior to diving into the ocean to rescue drowning victims. Died while demonstrating mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the wife of a jealous duke."

" Sir Akeem the Tall:

The tallest knight ever to enter the king's service. Like most knights, he died with his armour on. His untimely demise occurred during a thunderstorm when he raised his hand to point at ~~the~~ the cloud from which a lightning bolt had come a few moments before."
