The follow slides are draft designs for the Mach9Poker iOS application. They may not represent the final design. They are intended as a thought exercise to affirm the behaviors of the application.

The “home” screen is where the user can view their strategy, which is a list of rules that govern how they would play a given poker hand in a general scenario.

They can initiate tests, see the top-level statistics of a test (in real-time), and manage their rules.

The “create rule” screen is where the user decides the basic requirements of a rule.

They must choose:

- the round (Pre-Flop, Flop, Turn, or River)
- their position (button through cutoff)
- the range of hole cards to play (multi-select)

The “edit screen” is a continuation of rule creation/editing. After the requirements are set, the user can use one of seven tools to complete the rule, including:

- Blinds
- Villains
- Draws
- Outs
- Current Hand
- Current Bet
- Stack (not shown in this design)

The screenshot shows the "Edit Rule" interface for MACH 9 POKER. At the top, there's a header with the logo, "Edit Rule", the tournament name "AA-KK Early Tournament", and a user profile "Dave". Below the header, there are three fields: "Position: co", "Hole Cards: TT+, AKs, AQs", and "Round: Pre Flop". A green "Save" button is on the right. On the left, under the "Tools" section, there are buttons for "Blind", "Villains", "Draws", "Outs", "Current Hand", and "Current Bet". The main area on the right is labeled "Details" and is currently empty.
